Injectable Steroids

Injectable steroid drugs are steroids, presented in the form of an oily solution or suspension on a water basis. All over the world, the use of steroids is practiced in injectable form rather than for oral use.

Most athletes know firsthand about hormone esters. This group of drugs prolongs the life time of testosterone in the circulatory system. Despite the fact that esters are hydrophobic, they easily undergo dissolution in fats. That is why most manufacturers use natural-based oils for the manufacture of drugs. Prefer peanut and peach butter.

Steroid Administration Technique

Specialists involved in the sale of steroids in injections recommend injecting them into target muscles. So it is possible to accelerate the process of building muscle mass. But for beginners, this manipulation can cause severe pain.

The popularity of injectable steroids in sports is due to a number of significant advantages, namely:

- duration of action, which makes it possible to reduce the frequency of injections;
- stability of the anabolic balance throughout the injection course.
